

Liz Middlehurst

Liz Middlehurst qualified as a Registered Nurse in 2003. She first specialised in critical care nursing then moved in various leadership roles broadening her experiences across multiple departments of the acute Trust setting. After 8 years in matron and care group management positions she moved out of acute Trust organisations and into a national role and has been working for NHS Blood and Transplant as the Head of Operations for Organ Donation and Nursing for the last 18months. She is passionate about the nursing profession and its contribution to leadership in healthcare. To enhance her own qualities and influence in nursing leadership Liz commenced the Florence Nightingale Foundation leadership scholarship in 2020 and proudly champions the opportunity for others in national nursing forums.
