

Sandra Mulrennan

Sandra is currently the Head of Nursing at Royal Papworth Hospital Cambridge, and worked in the region as Head of Nursing at the West Suffolk Hospital. She has specialist roles at Addenbrooke's Hospital Cambridge and St Bartholomew's Hospital London. Her experience spans service improvement and redesign, and establishment of NIHR clinical research networks in the region, and as deputy Chief Operating Officer for the Eastern clinical research Network.

She was delighted to be awarded the FNF research scholarship, supported by Professor Christi Deaton (FNF Professor). Areas of interest include CV prevention, Heart Failure and Diabetes, innovation and research.

Sandra is passionate about achieving best outcomes for patients through excellence in research and supporting and facilitating staff development.